This book is dedicated to

Richard Janeway, M.D.

It is difficult to imagine where Bowman Gray would be today without the endless efforts of Dr. Richard Janeway. His continuing dedication to the medical school and community have provided a firm cornerstone upon which he has directed a period of growth unequalled in Bowman Gray's history. Dr. Janeway was born in Los Angeles, California on February 12, 1933. He attended Colgate University in Hamilton, New York where he received his A.B., Magna Cum Laude. He then attended the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine where he graduated with distinction in 1958. Dr. Janeway interned at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia before spending a year at the School of Aerospace Medicine in San Antonio, Texas. He then completed his residency training in Neurology at the North Carolina Baptist Hospital in 1966. He has served as a Flight Surgeon and Commander in the United States Air Force and received his specialty certification in Neurology in 1968. He is a husband of 34 years and the proud father of three fine children.

Since his tenure here at Bowman Gray his academic appointments have included Instructor in Neurology in 1966 with a rapid rise to Acting Chairman of the Department of Neurology in 1969 as an Assistant Professor. He was promoted to full Professor in 1971 and then served as Dean from 1971-1985. He was appointed Vice President of Health Affairs upon the retirement of Dr. Manson Meads in 1983. In 1985 Dr. Janeway was named Executive Dean and in 1990 as Executive Vice President for Health Affairs. He has led efforts to make Bowman Gray a nationally renowned research center moving from 69th to 35th among the nation's 126 academic medical centers in the amount of research funded by the National Institutes of Health. Under his leadership the Medical Center has continued to believe that the patient comes first; that the patient deserves the most compassionate and knowledgeable faculty and staff, the most advanced technology and the most sophisticated diagnosis and care. He has led the Medical Center through an impressive list of "firsts."

The Class of 1991 hereby fittingly dedicates the Bowman Gray/North Carolina Baptist Hospital's 50th anniversary edition of our GRAY MATTER annual to Dr. Richard Janeway for his unparalleled commitment to our institution and to our community.

The Class of 1991 would like to pay Special Acknowledgement to Robert C. Bowden, B.A.

Robert "Bob" Bowden came to Bowman Gray in 1974 as a member of the Housekeeping staff. For two years he showed an increasing interest in the Gross Anatomy laboratory. He then applied for the position of Gross Anatomy Technician. Bob studied gross anatomy tirelessly going through text after text, teaching films and completing many self-directed dissections. Throughout his tenure in the Anatomy lab Bob has become the "Master Dissector" and a strong foundation upon which we all leaned during that rough and intense first semester of medical school.

Professionally, he began to teach anatomy to select high school students. The department was so impressed with his innate ability to dissect and teach that he was soon teaching high school coaches, ultrasound technician students, graduate, and finally, first year medical students. As Dr. Bo said, "Bob is a great dissector. He has incredible grasp of the big picture that is invaluable in the teaching of medical students." Bob played a vital role in the development and publication of two exquisite reference textbooks dealing with the increasingly important field of cross-sectional anatomy. He is coauthor on a publication detailing the vasa vasorum of the carotid artery and is involved in research and additional publications on the vasa vasorum of the vertebral and basilar arteries.

Bob recently received his college degree from High Point College in June of 1990 after numerous and tireless hours of evening study. It is with undying gratitude, deep admiration and genuine fondness that the Class of 1991 acknowledges Robert C. Bowden as a source of major inspiration and infinite anatomical wisdom.

Damon D. Blake, M.D. (1921-1990)

Dr. Damon D. Blake, who devoted a career to treating cancer patients, died of cancer August 22, 1990. He was 69. Blake, professor emeritus of radiology, served 31 years as a member of the Bowman Gray faculty before his retirement in 1987. For 11 of those years he was head of the Section on Radiation Therapy. Recognized for his commitment to patients, he also was committed to improving the effectiveness of radiation therapy for cancer patients and to the training of other radiation therapists. A graduate of the University of Washington, Blake received the M.D. degree from the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons. Following internship at Salt Lake County (Utah), he took residency training in general surgery at King County Hospital in Seattle. He completed a three-year residency in radiology at University Hospital in Little Rock, Ark., and then came to Bowman Gray as a National Cancer Institute fellow. He was appointed to the faculty in 1956 and was promoted to full professor in 1969.

Marc C. Browning, M.D. (1948-1990)

Dr. Marc C. Browning, assistant professor of pediatrics at Bowman Gray, died October 4, 1990 at North Carolina Baptist Hospital. He was 42. Dr. Browning received the A.B. degree from Harvard University and the M.D. degree in 1975 from the University of California, Davis, School of Medicine. Following a three-year residency in pediatrics at Children's Memorial Hospital at Northwestern University Medical Center, he took a one-year fellowship in pediatric nephrology at Stanford University. a specialist in pediatric kidney diseases, he joined the faculty in 1982 and became one of 50 specialist physicians of the Brenner Children's Hospital. He was the author of several book chapters and journal articles related to aspects of pediatric nephrology. He is survived by his wife and two children.

Ruth O'Neal, M.D. (1916-1990)

Dr. Ruth O'Neal, associate professor emeritus of pediatrics, died April 15, 1990. Born in Dunn, N.C., she received the A.B. degree from Transylvania University and the M.D. degree from the Medical College of Virginia. She completed residency training as a Mayo Foundation Fellow in Pediatrics at the Mayo Clinic. She served the medical school for more than 40 years. She was appointed to the school's full-time faculty in 1969 after serving for 20 years on the part-time faculty while in private practice in Winston-Salem. From 1972-1977 she was director of pediatrics at Reynolds Health Center. In 1983 she was awarded an honorary Doctor of Science degree by Atlantic Christian College. She was named to emeritus status in 1985 but continued to teach until her death. Dr. O'Neal was one of the founders of the Bowman Gray child abuse team, which evaluates children who may have been sexually or physically abused. She also was a founder of the Battered Women's Shelter. She was known for her teaching ability, for her dedication to students and for her commitment to the care of infants and children. The Bowman Gray Class of 1982 dedicated its yearbook to Dr. O'Neal. In the dedication citation, they stated, "She has shown us how to be competent, caring and dedicated physicians."

In Memory of Charles Brian Clark

Charles Brian Clark, Chuck, died July 4th, 1990 at the age of 35. Chuck was a world traveler at the age of ten, martial artist, Morehead scholar in mathematics and physics, scuba/sailing instructor for Norwegian Cruise Lines and student of medicine. Chuck was a friend to all of us who knew him.

Chuck had been diagnosed with Stage D colon cancer in 1987 while still in the process of applying to medical school. His determination to become a physician drove him on through the MCAT, applications and interviews even while taking chemotherapy. When we met Chuck at orientation he appeared so alive that none would have guessed his chemotherapy had failed and he was in relapse.

All of us remember the rigors of first year: gross anatomy, biochemistry, "Bloody October," physiology, microbiology, finals. For most of us school was all we could handle; for Chuck there was all of this and his cancer. His courage and dedication drove him on. There were chemotherapy treatments on Fridays so he could be in class Monday. When hospitalizations caused him to miss class he listened to every lecture on tape. Remember Chuck trailing his IV pole behind him into CME meetings? Remember him being wheeled into class in a wheelchair when he was too weak to walk? Mark Twain said, "Courage is not the absence of fear but the mastery of it!" Chuck not only faced his fear but he mastered that fear every day and dragged himself to class when most men would have given up.

We have many memories of Chuck, some happy, some sad. Mostly we remember a man of extraordinary courage who faced his dying with dignity; who demonstrated a dedication to medicine beyond all that could be expected of anyone. On those miserable nights on call when we question our own dedication to medicine the memory of his perseverance, his dedication, encourages us to get up and go see another patient. Soon we will become what Chuck Clark wished most in life to be, a physician. We hope that we will be as good as he would have been.

1941-1991 FIFTY YEARS OF EXCELLENCE

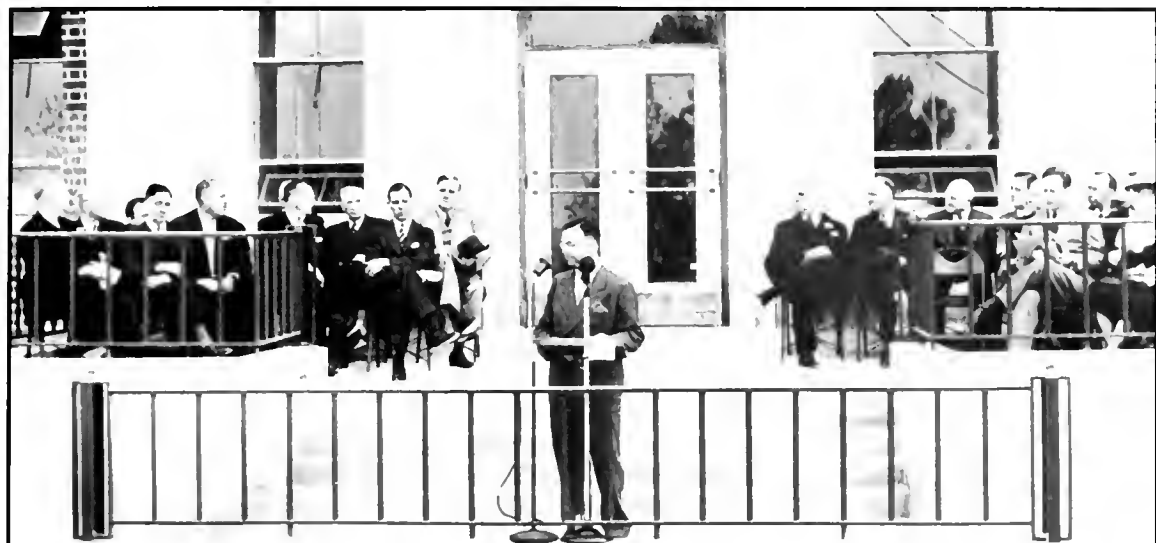

THE BOWMAN GRAY MEDICAL SCHOOL OF WAKE FOREST COLLEGE

It was not so long ago. . . .

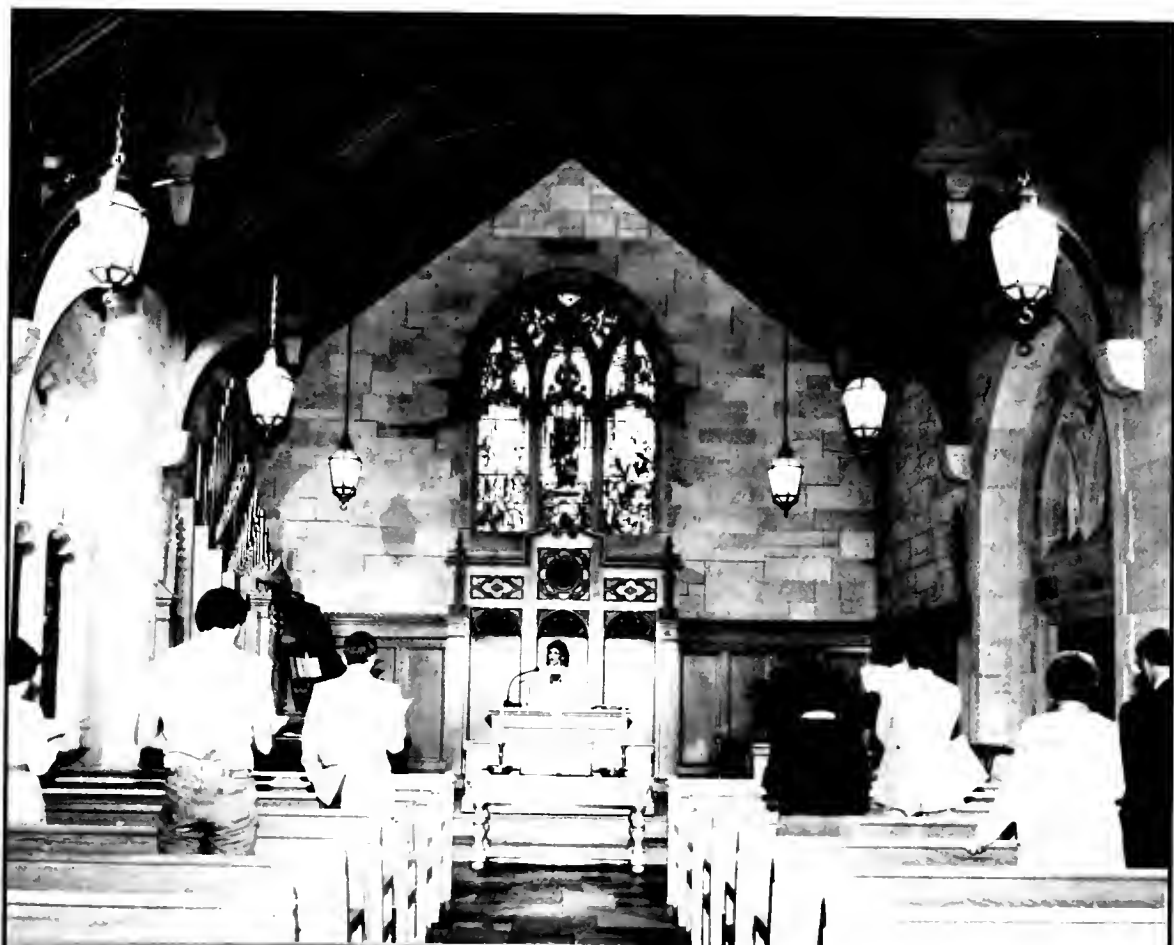

When in July 1941, the new Bowman Gray School of Medicine of Wake Forest College was opened, the institution took on the big time name, Wake Forest College of Wake Forest and Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Although the addition of the new school had given to the college a west campus, and although this west campus was one hundred miles away, it nevertheless became at once an integral part of the establishment.

Though the medical school has moved, the faculty enlarged, and new faces admitted to its ranks, the immortal Wake Forest spirit still prevails. Yet a change has come to both campuses. The east side is sensing the absence of the white-coated medics and their anatomy labs. The west side, influenced by the men who for four or five years have inhaled the Wake Forest atmosphere, seems to grow magnolias and friendly smiles, symbols of what they have left behind.

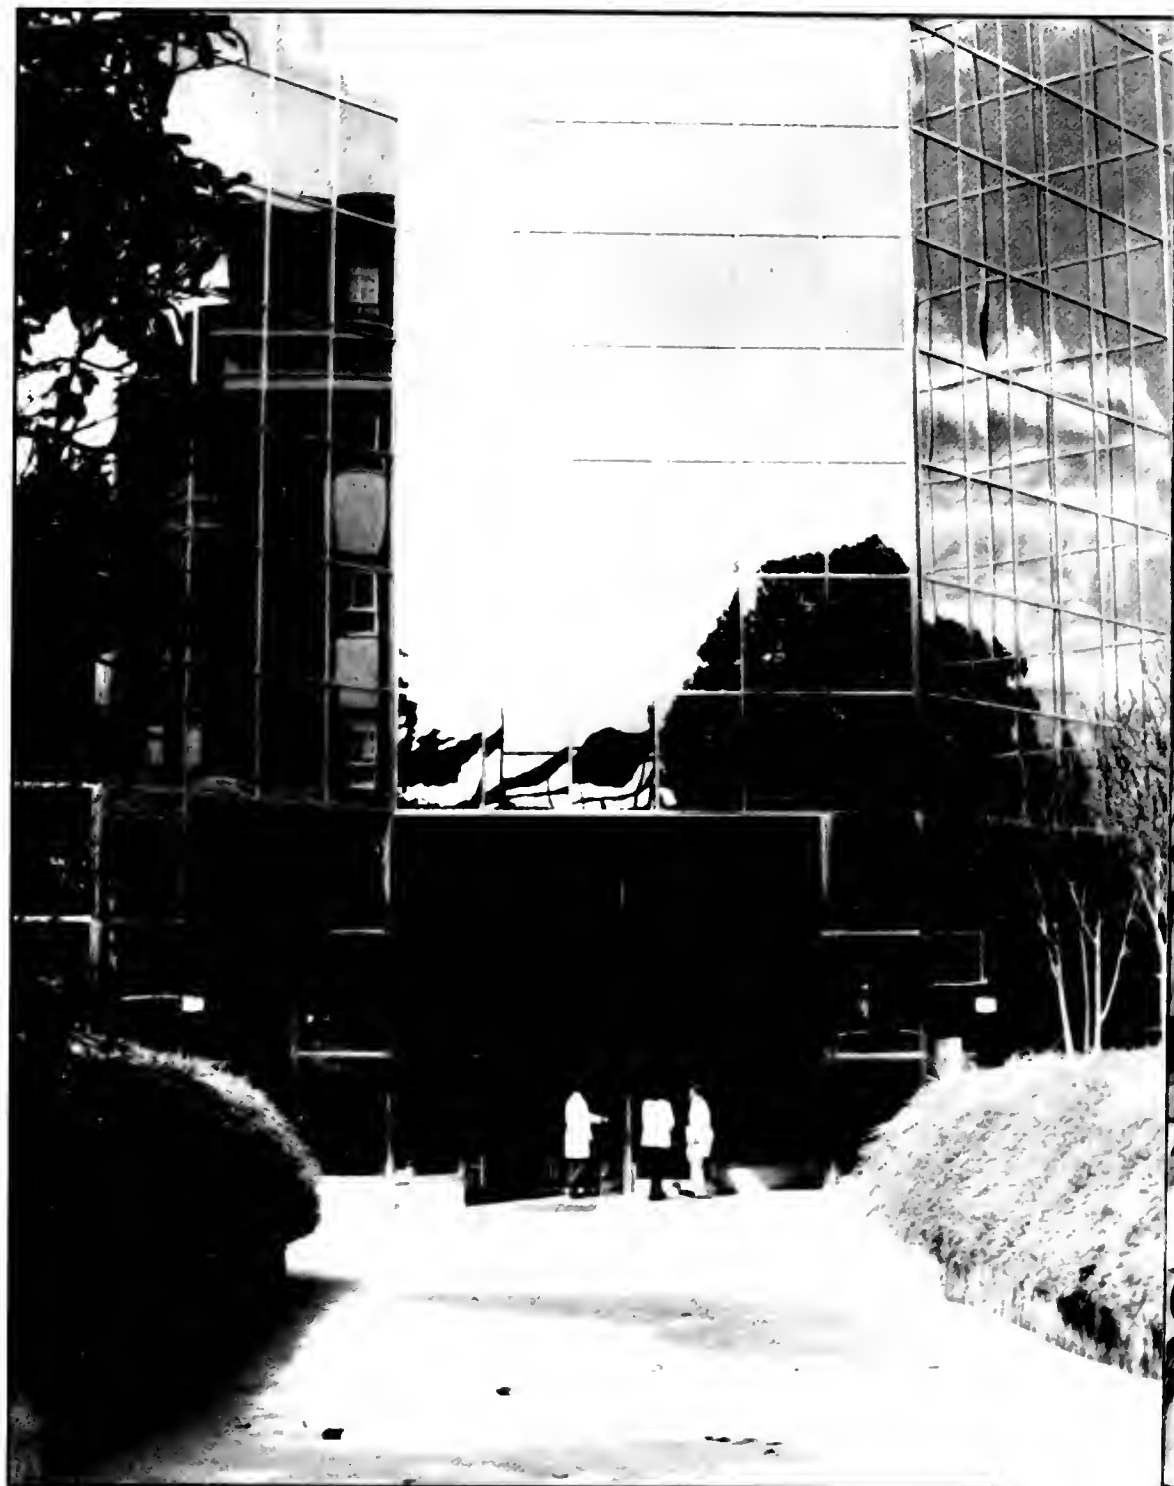

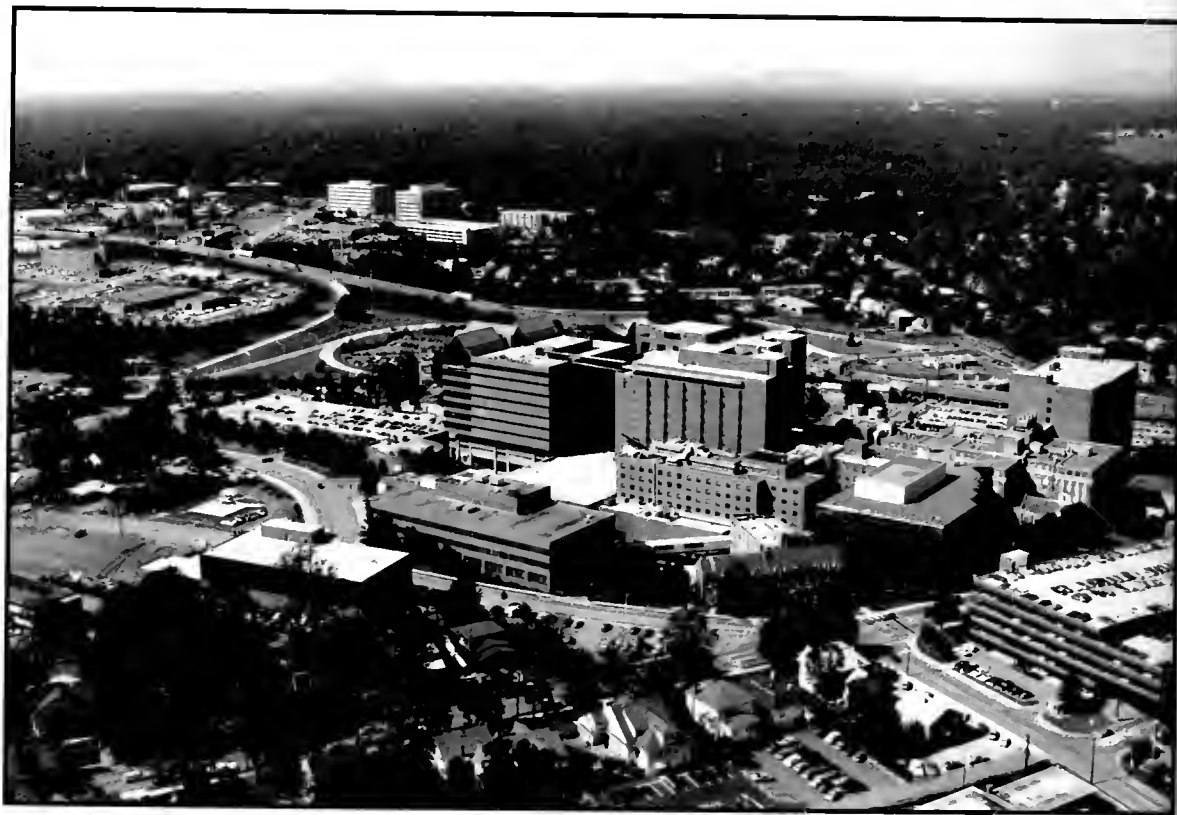

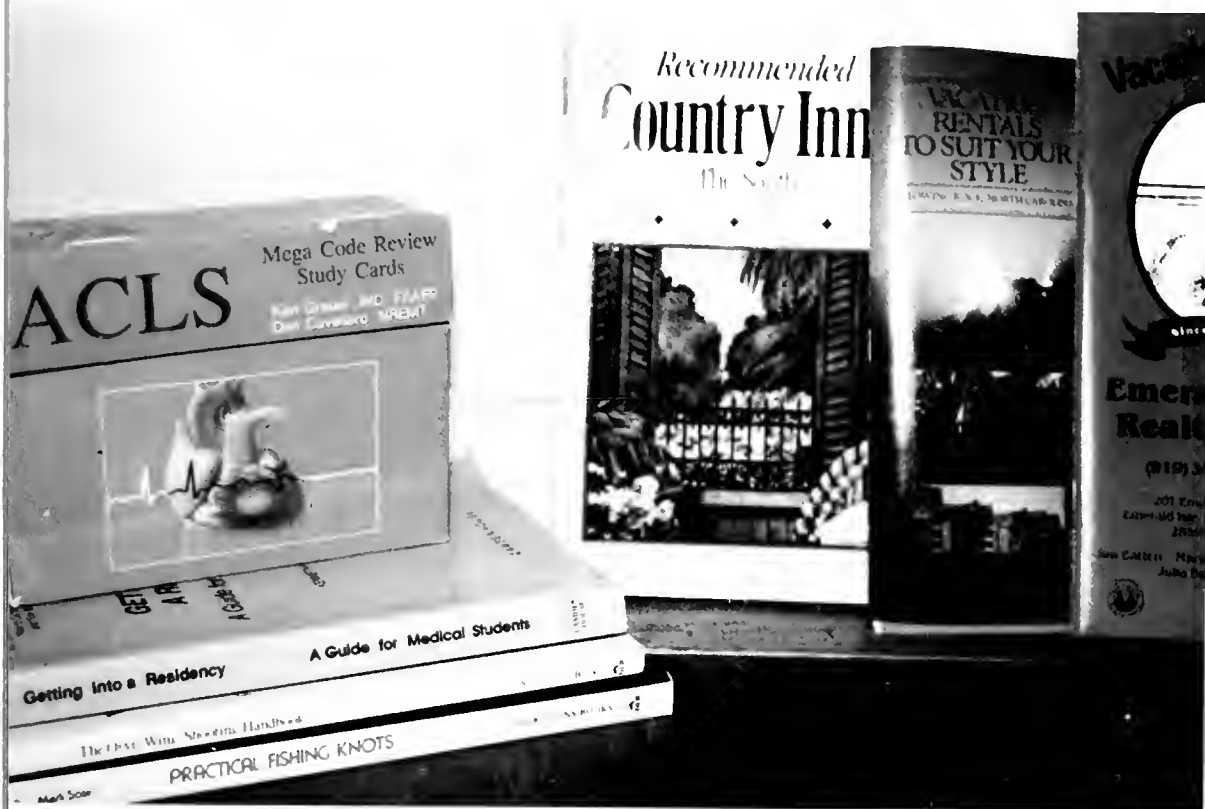

We are about to graduate . . . We go into a world of strife, prepared to further our own learning and to throw our complete energies into the development of a world where each person has equal opportunities, and more particularly where we with specialized training in Medicine may do our best to care for all the sick. Let us not forget the challenge.

SENIORS

NINETYONE

First Year

We began at the beginning. We had been told that the hardest part of medical school was over: getting in. It's hard to imagine now that we believed that but maybe we did. And so with apprehension, exhilaration, cockiness, panic, anticipation and the self-protection of ignorance we began. There were all of the "firsts" to get through: the first day in Anatomy lab, the first Anatomy exam, the first practical — one minute to identify a nerve, a muscle, an artery, or a cusp of a heart valve. We approached our assigned cadavers with mixed emotions and cautiously crept into the world of medical knowledge. Some of us grew used to working up on the fourth floor. Some of us came to enjoy the challenge of the dissections. Some of us coped with it the best we could and joyously burned our lab clothes in December. After "A" comes "B" and "B" stands for Biochemistry: nucleic acids and enzymes, pathways and defects in all of the above, quizzes and tests and wondering why we came here after all. "Bloody October" and the Christmas Dance came and went. The year was also a first for Bowman Gray with the introduction of the Parallel Curriculum. Of the 108 of us, 18 embarked on a problem-based approach to medical knowledge acquisition and 90 of us entered the "traditional path." Within a short time the traditionals renamed themselves the perpendiculars or 'perps' for short. For the parallels first year meant small groups, patient contact and week-long evaluation sessions. Somehow we each circled in our own curriculums, separated by vastly different experiences and by physically different learning areas.

By second semester a sense of belonging began to set in and at least we were respected and looked at enviously by a segment of people: those interviewing for medical school. Physiology, and tests, and tutorials, and evaluations, lake parties and intramural sports, Hon-Yak basketball and escaping to the movies abounded. The Tanglewood Spring Picnic, making friends, and then came the last 'summer' of our lives.

Second Year

Summer pathology for perps, community medicine for parallels then we regathered no longer burdened by the stigma of being the 'new kids,' the 'first years.' We endured, we survived, we were second years. Before we even had time to savor the succulence of our move up to the 'G' floor and the traditional foot-stomping welcome to the new souls on 'E' floor we were off and running again. A varied list of goals and achievements lay ahead of us, beginning with assignment to autopsy groups and culminating in our transition to clinical work. Many of us struggled under the weight of pharmacological concepts. Mechanisms of action and metabolism became part of our daily lives. For the perps it was a long-awaited introduction to clinical courses: Cardiology, Oncology, Obstetrics, Psychiatry and Surgery. We learned how to do a 'complete history and physical' and we were proud when it only took us three hours to perform one or the other. We were officially 'white coated' and welcomed into the clinical world during one beautiful Fall weekend. After the ceremony we promptly returned to the books and labs; for in reality, clinical medicine was still months away. Looming even closer than the wards was the ultimate enemy of every medical student — National Boards, Part I. Somehow we still managed to cling to the vestige of hope passed down by those who had gone before us, that "This too shall pass," and of course that oft repeated line, "Hang in there — next year is much better." Then came Surgery lab, more 'Z' scores and more evaluation weeks. Somehow we made time for escapes to Hanging Rock or the beach or the mountains or even our own backyards. We taught kids about prevention of heart disease and adults and adolescents about the realities of HIV. We sent representatives to medical meetings around the country. We sank our roots in deeper. We experienced the OSCE and before we knew it, had been catapulted into THIRD YEAR.

Third Year

There is no graceful way of being a third-year medical student. Just when you begin to think you're getting into the swing of a rotation it's time to move on again. It was a new year with all new rules and new goals. We were suddenly drawing blood, looking up lab values, tracking down x-rays and CT scans, filling out consult sheets and being the fourth person to do an H & P on a patient in the past 24 hours; and our H & P's took more time than all the other ones combined. We were indoctrinated into the art of rounding and pre-rounding, presenting and dictating. We learned how to deliver babies and became experts at staple placement and removal. We figured out about drug rep. lunches and how to find food between OR cases. We donned the attire of the medical profession: white coats or green scrubs but somehow it always seemed obvious to those around us that we were medical students, third year medical students. We met and conquered the shelf exam and discovered that it was really just a multiple choice test with a more lofty title. We learned about being on-call and nights without sleep and that people are sick 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. We began to make tentative gestures towards the future and decisions about our careers. And then . . .

Fourth Year

Fourth year. It began blissfully and beautifully. It often meant no call and no weekends. It meant becoming a 'real person' again; grabbing the chance before the deluge of internship. It meant having come a far way and getting the little thrill of amazement when someone asks you what year you are and being able to respond, "I'm a fourth year." Somehow, suddenly, we unexpectedly became beset by that repeat offender — National Boards, Part II. We reached new and never before experienced heights of procrastination with residency applications. Our lives became a swirl of postcards and manilla envelopes, personal statements and Dean's letters.

Then there was the lull before the storm of interviews. Flying here and driving there. Trying to find the questions to ask and figure out what it was really like to be an intern at a certain hospital. We ranked our choices and waited for "THE MATCH" to point its ever-random finger upon our lives and direct our futures. And then we entered the post-match period (aka senior slump). Suddenly it was May 20th and it was over as quickly as it had begun and we were doctors. And as we reached for our diplomas we turned to face the challenges that lay ahead and the beginning of a whole new period of our education.

Epilogue

In the course of our time here the world has not stood still. We've watched our own government change hands and seen the students of China so bravely begin to change theirs. We've seen the course of history altered as democracy came to the Eastern Bloc of Europe and the Berlin Wall became relegated to history books. Even as the "Cold War" has come to a close, a new conflict is smoldering in the Mid-East. This goes off to the yearbook presses as President Bush and the United Nations declares a January 15th deadline. Perhaps by the time it is nestled safely in the pages of the finished yearbook no war will have come to pass and no further loss of lives will have happened.

Natural disasters struck nationwide including the tornado in Winston-Salem in May of 1989. San Francisco and the whole of California was violently shaken by an earthquake during the 1989 World Series. Charleston, South Carolina was battered by Hurricane Hugo as other fierce hurricanes and storms struck the Eastern and Gulf coasts. The Midwest drought of 1988 may still be only a hint of things to come. CDs, VCRs, and cellular phones became household words. Batman began the comic book hero revival and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles birthed a whole new following. Pac-man was out and Super Mario and Nintendo were in. Recycling entered the age of necessity and Roe vs. Wade was challenged.

I'd like to believe that most of us are leaving here changed; that somehow this experience has altered us, and maybe in spite of all the hard parts and the bad parts and the parts that we'll try to forget, that maybe the good parts have in some small way changed us for the better. I know we leave Bowman Gray different than how we found it. Maybe we've made it a little bit better.

THE PARALLEL CURRICULUM

THE ADVENTURE

Hey look! Here's another grey, yucky thing that smells.

Group enthusiasm at its peak.

We're naming this baby "Zipadee" — Zipadee Duda, great name!

Dr. Lisa that's cold, and get Charles Bronson outta here!

Three "Docs" and a little lady.

Mike dresses for dinner in South Dakota formal wear.

We took a chance. 18 "guinea pigs" tried problem based learning, and it wasn't too bad. It even seemed fun at times. First two years: IPAs, program changes, self doubts, and some "real" doctoring.

CHARTER CLASS BEGINS

Working into the night, group process discovers a cure for cancer.

Yes Ed, I CAN have a baby and finish school too.

See? I told you!

Breakfast Club II — Off to the wards. "They have jelly donuts there don't they?"

Lisa and her Italian stallions.

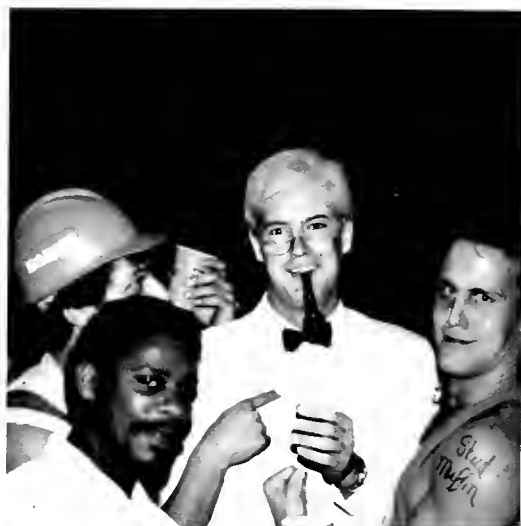

Hear me oh god of the Boards — Let us pass . . .

Who in this picture needs sex tonight?

Last two years: the wards, fourth year fun, future decisions, Boards again, and the long awaited Residency Match. The guinea pigs became doctors too. Thanks to Terri and the many that helped!

Operation Desert Storm — Bowman Gray Style!

Major Linda Atteberry, CRNA, MS IV, volunteered for duty as Operation Desert Shield was gearing up. She is serving, as this goes to press on 02-22-91, with the 201st Evac. Hospital in Saudi Arabia. Good luck and return safely Linda! The photos and captions were received from Linda this month.

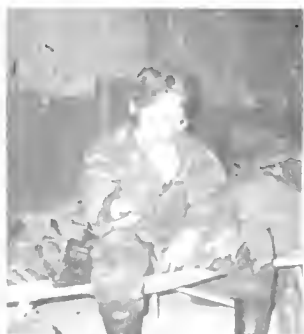

"This is me getting ready to get on the bus to the Naval Air Station, where we caught the plane for Saudi."

"On arrival in Saudi at 22:30, there was nowhere for us but the muddy airfield on what was surely the coldest night of the year. I have found a blanket and am getting ready for a power nap in the mud."

"The next morning, at about 08:00, the sun was up and I realized what a beautiful place this is. Gradually, the sun dried us and warmed us up. At 11:00, we got busses to take us . . . near Dhahran where we moved into a parking garage. The war started that night."

"Here we are perhaps 8 hours into the war. We hadn't slept for 4 days. You can see that we boarded up the garage windows, in an effort to keep chemical warfare agents out. We had spent the night in chemical suits and gas masks, with SCUD missiles exploding overhead when intercepted. I am sitting on my cot eating field ration peanut butter out of a plastic pouch, and listening to news of the war on the Walkman. Notice how crowded it is! We lived in there for a week. It was actually fun!"

FALL CONVOCATION 1990

The Fourth Annual Fall Convocation on October 27, 1990 represented an academic milestone for the BGSM class of 1993. Students received white coats to mark their passage from the study of the basic sciences to that of clinical medicine. Wilham Osler's essay entitled "A Way of Life" was presented to each student in memory of Lisa Dull, a former Administrative Assistant to Dr. John Folmie. The class of 1993 thanks the Administration, faculty, and Medical Alumni Association who graciously participated in and supported the event.

Thanks to an incredibly patient wife and friend!

"ANOTHER deadline?!"

Acknowledgements

Special thanks to Dr. June May for her UNENDING patience, support and time!

Thanks to Dr. Manson Mead, Katherine Davis, Dr. Robert Prichard, Nancy Cox and Dallas Mackee for supplying encouragement and biographies of certain members of the Bowman Gray community.

I cannot possibly thank Mr. Jack Dent enough. He often was asked to supply numerous photographs at a minutes notice.

Thank you to JoAnn Thomas of Jostens Publishing for her greatly appreciated advice and generosity in meeting deadlines.

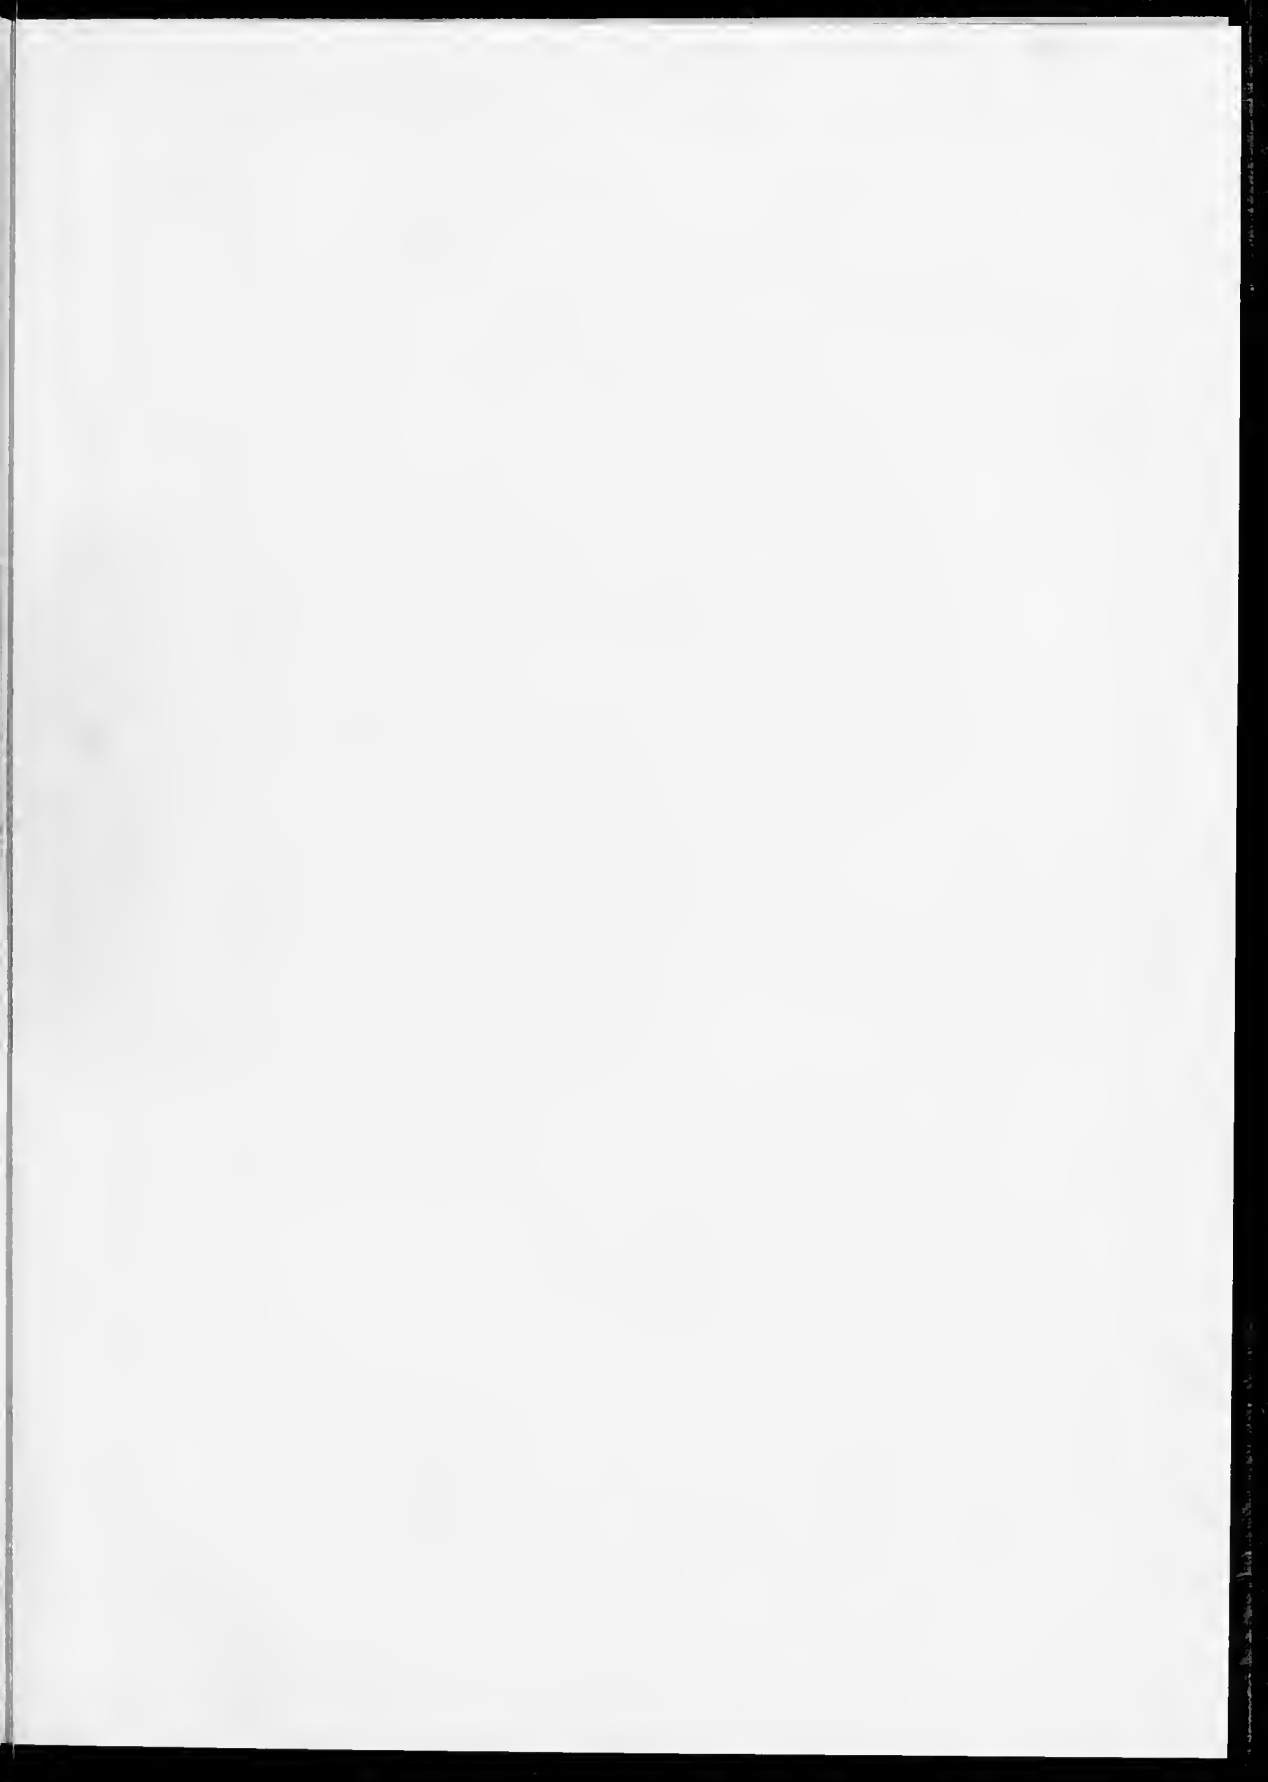

The Senior Narrative was written by Maria Sgambati, MS IV.

Thank you to Lisa Miller, MS IV and Jim McLane, MS III for helping with the Chuck Clark In Memorium page.

Having lived with last year's editor I thought I had a pretty good idea of the work involved but . . . I owe my most beautiful wife, Tracy, many thanks for her tolerance of my deadline induced psychoses. Thanks also to Cheryl for her help in meeting the first deadline, i.e. the BIG one.

Ugh! From the Summer Preparatory program under Dr. Strittmatter to the final stages of graduation we endured and learned, commiserated and celebrated. I hope we shall see each other through the years. We leave with many fond memories.

Best Wishes
John
